Percentage of responses 'Neither agree nor disagree' or 'Prefer not to say'

Statement	%
Destructive Fishing is behavioural (i.e. linked to what people do)	4 %
Destructive Fishing is a term with multiple dimensions or meanings	6 %
Destructive Fishing has changed in its meaning over time	3 %
Destructive Fishing describes changes/impacts that are avoidable	0 %
Destructive Fishing describes changes/impacts that are reversible but long−lasting	7 %
Destructive Fishing is inherent (i.e. linked to specific activities that can be defined)	9 %
Destructive Fishing is situational (i.e. linked to the context in which people's activities are carried out)	6 %
Destructive Fishing cannot be expressed universally (i.e. is always context−dependent)	0 %
Destructive Fishing describes changes/impacts that are irreversible over any time scale	0 %
Destructive Fishing describes a primarily ecological concept	4 %
Destructive Fishing can describe an economic concept	0 %
Destructive Fishing can describe a social concept	0 %
Destructive Fishing describes changes/impacts that are reversible over any time−scale	3 %

Percentage of responses that agree or disagree

Response types: Strongly agree · Somewhat agree · Somewhat disagree · Strongly disagree